1 Description

The Karmapa International Buddhist Institute originates from the wish of His Holiness the 16th Gyalwa Karmapa. He specified several projects to be completed in order to establish the Karma Kagyu lineage outside of the Himalayan region. Among these projects K.I.B.I. is an institute of higher learning and study of Buddhas timeless wisdom, including Buddhist philosophy, theory of perception and the Tibetan language. It should be accessible to Buddhists from around the world who are not familiar with Tibetan. The Indian government donated a plot of land to H.H. the 16th Gyalwa Karmapa for this purpose in the South of Delhi, B19-20 Qutub Institutional Area.

After the death of the 16th Gyalwa Karmapa in 1981, H.H. Shamar Rinpoche carried out the vision and founded K.I.B.I., which opened in the autumn of 1990.

The owner of the building complex with more than 100 rooms is the Karmapa Charitable Trust with Shamar Rinpoche as is board member.

K.I.B.I. is located in a beautiful building constructed in the style of a traditional Tibetan monastery. Just opposite to the institute is a large park with a great view.

The main building is a big four storied building containing the dining hall, a large meditation hall, class-rooms, a lecture hall, the café, the student lounge, offices and H.H. Gyalwa Karmapa's and Shamar Rinpoche's private quarters.

Surrounding this building in a semicircle is the students' accommodation containing rooms in two sizes. The small rooms have an attached private bathroom and the larger rooms have a common bathroom. It is possible to live in either type of room by oneself (single) or to share it (double). All rooms are of the same standard and are equipped similarly, with a bed and basic bedding, desk, chair, bookcase and wardrobe.

Since then H.H. Shamar Rinpoche has been the chairman of the school. Until 2005 the main instructor was Khenpo Chodrak Tenphel Rinpoche. In accordance with H.H. Shamar Rinpoches wishes Khenpo Tsering as the main teacher offers a new study program since January 2007. The three month winter courses start allways in January.

Since the reopening of the K.I.B.I. in 2007 the Institute started a large maintenance project. Due to the fact that the Institute was closed for two years the buildings are in a very bad shape. Since the construction phase was completed in 1990 no major works for maintaining the buildings were done. 2008 Shamar Rinpoche decided to invest into the restoration of H.H. Gyalwa Karmapa's and Shamar Rinpoche's private quarters in the second and third floor of the main building.

At the same time the actual K.I.B.I. administration with the help of the architect Rolando Klee decided to start a restoration program as well for the public parts of the building complex. It includes the restoration of the meditation hall, classrooms, washing rooms, offices, student dormitories and the enlargement of the library.

The project started in October 2008 in accordance to Rolando Klees plans under the supervisor Karma Wangchuk. The first project part was finished in March 2009. Duration of the project is right now not possible to fix due to the fact that the timing is dependent on available money resources.

4 Purpose of the Institute

The Karmapa International Buddhist Institute is a college for advanced Buddhist studies. KIBI's purpose is to foster wisdom and compassion through the study and translation of the great Buddhist treatises. It saves and protects Buddhist knowledge which is in accordance to the Karma Kagu Tradition.

The Karmapa International Buddhist Institute offers a four year program. Classes will be held each year from January until mid March. The courses are taught in a progressive order and cover various seminal works on Buddhist philosophy and theory of perception as well as special training in Diamondway (skt. vajrayana) rituals and weekend seminars on Great Way (skt. mahayana) and Diamondway (skt. vajrayana) topics. There will be optional Tibetan classes on classical Tibetan. Classes will either be given in English or translated into English. Attending the course therefore requires sufficient skills in spoken and written English.

The Karmapa International Buddhist Institute supports the study programme with its Library which is open to all students and guest. The purpose of the library is to collect all types of books which are related to buddhist meditation, philosophy, therorie of perception, history, art and medicine. It offers the oportunity for scientific reseach in all aspects of buddhism.
